

Allied Health

Unlock Your Potential!

Allied Health courses are structured to teach students theoretical, technical and clinical skills for entry level health care positions. These courses are designed to prepare students to test for a state or industry-recognized credential. Students will gain knowledge consisting of, but not limited to, basic patient care, infection control, communication skills, anatomy and physiology, and medical terminology. These short-term training programs allow students a competitive edge in today's challenging healthcare industry!
